Summary: Hiccup and Jack have been dating for six years. And now, a 21 year old Hiccup wants to take their relationship up a notch.

Knowing that his 20 year old boyfriend has always wanted to watch the sunset, he surprises him with a trip to see it, and with something more. HiJack! ModernAU,

Surprise

Hiccup laughed as Jack stumbled around. The poor brunette was blindfolded and had his arms out.

"IT'S NOT FUNNY!" He whined, "HENRICK!"

Hiccup, whose real name was Henrick, snaked his arms around Jack.

Jack huffed and reached up to remove the blindfold.

"Uh-uh-uh-uh!" Hiccup smirked, grabbing both of his wrists in one hand. Jack pouted and tugged his hands away. Or at least, he tried to.

Hiccup laughed some more, let go of one of his wrists, and led the other boy upstairs.

Jack yelped as he stumbled, "Ya know...this would be easier if I-"

"Not taking it off," Hiccup sang.

Jack let out another whine.

Hiccup just smiled and helped the boy get up the stairs.

"Don't worry, just a few more steps."

Jack sighed and almost panicked when he made a move to put his foot on a step only to meet air.

Hiccup laughed, "We're here!"

Jack huffed and tried to take off the fabric covering his eyes.

"Not yet!" Hiccup led him to a railing. "Don't move."

Jack stayed still. He didn't even want to risk it.

Hiccup smiled as he removed the blindfold.

Jack opened his eyes. Warm, chocolate brown, widened when they saw the sunset for the first time.

"Do you like it?" Hiccup asked.

Jack let out an awed, "Yes..."

He had always wanted to see the sunset. And the sunrise. He's done the second, and now...

"Hiccup," Jack smiled, "when..."

He trailed off, when he saw Hiccup get down on one knee.

Several bystanders, several of them being females (FANGIRLS!), stopped what they were doing, and laid their attention on the two boys.

Jack ignored them as Hiccup took his hand in his own.

"Jack," Hiccup smiled gently, "I know, today is a special day. And it's been six years. Six long years. And within those years, my love for you has never faded. How can it, when the one thing I always hope to see, is your beautiful smile..."

Jack blushed, and several of the females (FANGIRLS!) shrieked in anticipation.

Hiccup rolled his eyes, but he kept the smile on his face. "We've had our fights, the moments we've held each other when we cry. Life wouldn't be the same without you. My life wouldn't be complete without you. And I know, that I want more."

Jack could feel the tears collect in his eyes as Hiccup let go of his hand, and reach into his jacket.

"I want you by side. No one else compares to you Jack. You're like the snowflakes you love. Unique. One of a kind. Beautiful, alone, you seem fragile. But you aren't. And together, we're strong. I don't want our relationship to end, but I do want, to take it a step further."

Hiccup pulled out a black velvet box. He opened it, revealing a silver ring with a snowflake formed by diamonds and an ice blue diamond in the center.

Jack gasped and gripped the railing behind him. A hand covered his mouth as tears flowed from his eyes.

He could see tears falling from Hiccup's eyes as well.

"Jackson Frost Overland, " Hiccup took a deep breath, "will you do me the honor, of accepting...my hand in marriage?"

Jack stepped forwards.

The crowd leaned in, waiting for the answer.

Jack nodded slowly, letting out a tearful laugh, "Yes...yes, yes, oh MiM, YES!"

Hiccup smiled through his tears s he slipped the ring onto Jack's finger.

"KISS!" A random person yelled.

Hiccup stood and tilted Jack's head up.

He smiled more, when he saw Jack was still crying.

He knew he had made the right choice.

So, without a hesitant thought, he pulled the other in for a passionate kiss.
